

Carbon RX Announces its “Vision of the Elders” Supporting Environmental Sovereignty of First Nations in Canada

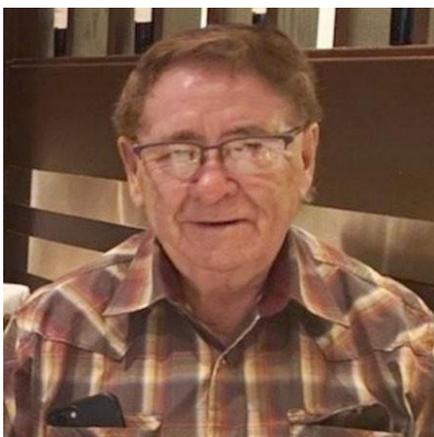

Regina, Saskatchewan – April 23, 2022 – Carbon RX Inc. (“Carbon RX”) has made the commitment to Indigenous inclusion, through the appointment of their Elders Council: “Vision of the Elders”.

The Elders are highly respected individuals who play key roles in First Nations communities. They are important knowledge keepers, who help to ensure cultural continuity. As living connections to the past, Elders serve as teachers, healers, and advisors within their respective communities. Carbon RX’s relies on and respects the guidance of the Elders and translates this knowledge into the working values of Carbon RX.

Elder Dexter Asapace

Born in 1947 on the Kawacatoose First Nation, Elder Dexter lived most of his life in this community, which he proudly calls home. Apart from the period he was placed in a residential school within the Muskowekwan First Nation Reserve, Kawacatoose has always been his home. Growing up, in what was originally called Poorman First Nation, Elder Dexter learnt early survival skills from living off the land he called home. In his teen years, Elder Dexter worked as a cattle rancher within the community, gaining the knowledge and wisdom that he is respected for today.

Elder Gordon Gadwa

Born in Bonnyville, Alberta, and raised on the Kehewin Cree Nation, Elder Gordon Gadwa has been a life-long witness to the changes and developments for First Nations peoples across Canada, especially among the peoples of Treaty 6 in Alberta. Elder Gordon served for nearly four decades in community leadership roles, providing valuable service to the people of Kehewin Cree Nation, through his 16 years as a Councillor, overseeing various economic portfolios, and 18 years as Chief.
